

Claims

1. (canceled)

2. (new) A plastic embodiment designed to position a three-point seat belt;

This embodiment for adjusting a three-point seat belt system that includes a lap belt and a diagonal shoulder belt;

- (a) a front plastic face that is 2" wide x 2" long;
- (b) a back rearward plastic face parallel to said front plastic face that is 2" x 2" long;
- (c) the front and back plastic faces are held together with $\frac{1}{4}$ " plastic sides that makes a one piece embodiment that has a $\frac{1}{4}$ " channel opening parallel to the embodiment that allows the seat belts to be installed into the plastic embodiment;
- (d) this embodiment is designed to keep both sections of a three-point seat belt together when buckling up;
- (e) with both sections of a three-point seat belt installed in this embodiment when buckled up causes the upper torso section to change its position on the user moving away from their neck, which makes the seat belt more user friendly.